

NOTICE:

No suit or piece of equipment can provide complete protection under every condition and for every type of use. Although Rich Industries, Inc. stands ready to answer questions about our products and packages and to assist you in your purchase, it is your responsibility to determine that the suit is appropriate and suitable for your particular intended use. Your responsibilities include, among other things:

- choosing the suit and other equipment that is suitable for you and your particular intended use;
- familiarizing yourself with the information contained in any direction pamphlet, technical manual, video/DVD, or other materials provided by Rich Industries, Inc. or other manufacturers that explain the equipment and its proper use, maintenance, storage, etc;
- carefully inspect the suit and other equipment before and after each use to check for wear or damage.

If a suit becomes frayed or torn, or if the integrity of the suit is in any other way compromised, use of the suit should be immediately terminated.
